NEWS AND COMMENTS.

COL. "Mulberry Sellars" lived just a few years too soon. In this era of booms, bubbles and b'atherskites he would have been "in the swim."

THE recent rumor that the Charlotte Chronicle had been sold, and would pass into new hands, was incorrect, which we consider very fortunate. Under the management of Mr. D. F. ST. CLAIR, assisted by Mr. DOWD, the Chronicle is edited with ability, dignity, good judgment and sound sense—just the paper to benefit North Carolina, Mecklenburg county and the city of Charlotte. By all means, "let well enough alone."

IF THACKERAY didn't say this it sounds like him: "Men have every bit as much vanity as women—with the only difference that women know and acknowledge their vanity while men do not." The spectacle of CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW posing for his photograph, to be used in the illustration of a magazine article representing him as par excellence the orator of America, would move the great English satirist, were he living, to declare exultantly: "Yes, I wrote that aphorism, and I'm proud of it."

UNLESS the reports from all quarters are greatly exaggerated, no inconsiderable percentage of the cotton crop has already come to naught through the backwardness of the season, failure to secure a stand, etc.; but this apparent affliction may prove to be a "blessing in disguise." A surplus of 1,000,000 bales from last year's supply looks rather "squally;" and, if the farmers shall have been able to utilize the land made waste by the failure in cotton with food crops that mature by harvest time, they may yet be able to say by Christmas: "Out of this nettle, danger, we've plucked the flower, safety."

PHILADELPHIA has, by one brilliant coup de main in financiering, wiped out the stigma upon it as slow and unprogressive, even as North Carolina long ago "shucked" the garment of Rip Van Winkleism. One of its fiduciary officers has accomplished a defalcation which would do no discredit to cosmopolitan New York, "culchawed" Bosting, windy Chicago, bustling Cincinnati or godforsaken St. Paul. As the law seems powerless to check bank-wrecking and squandering of public funds, it might not be a bad idea to get up a generous rivalry among our large cities—publish a premium list every fall, as they do with county fairs, for exceptionally fine specimens of the defaulter, with a chromo thrown in for a bank president or State or county treasurer who covers himself with glory.

PERHAPS never before in the history of Great Britain have the people indulged in such plain talk about royalty as is now passed from lip to lip in the salons of London and the humbler circles elsewhere in England—and if it be true that "there's a divinity doth hedge about a king," certainly the protection is not extended to the heir-apparent. In the CUMMING slander case an audacious juryman took the initiative by "bearding" the PRINCE OF WALES from his seat in the box; Sir EDWARD CLARKE, Solicitor-General and counsel for the plaintiff, followed suit in what amounted to almost a "tongue-lashing" of his Royal Highness; and now the press and religious and civic organizations treat Queen VICTORIA'S first-born with little more respect than is accorded by the political opposition to a President of the United States. We have no straight-laced puritanism in our composition, thank heaven, and we realize that, in a country where everybody, even among the highest, plays cards, and for money stakes, the offense of the Prince was more venial than it would have been under more rigorous social conditions; but in the progress of the baccarat scandal case it was developed that he, who in the ordinary course of events will probably be called soon to wield the sceptre over one of the most powerful and enlightened nations of the earth, is a confirmed gambler, almost a "plunger" among gamblers, who carries his "counters" about with him from house to house, and presides over the game as banker—and this is a sorry, disreputable state of affairs.

HON. THOS. C. FULLER, whom the President has just appointed Associate Justice on the bench of the Court of Land Claims, is a native of Franklin county, and is about 60 years of age. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, and, shortly after commencing the practice of his profession, married Miss CATTIE WHITEHEAD, of an old and cultured family, and one of the most charming and accomplished young women in Fayetteville society. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted as a private in Capt. J. B. STARR'S Company F (LaFayette Light Infantry) in the famous First (Bethel) North Carolina Regiment, which, with the Richmond Howitzers and a few other detached troops, fought the first regular engagement of the war at Big Bethel, a few miles below Yorktown. Afterwards he became 1st Lieutenant in Co. B, 13th N. C. Battalion Light Artillery, but resigned in 1863, having been elected to represent this district in the Confed rate Congress. After the war he was elected to the Federal Congress, but, like many other Southern representatives, was not allowed to take his seat. Col. FULLER held at this bar the commanding position which he readily assumed at Raleigh on removing to the State capital about fifteen years ago. An able counselor, expounder and interpreter of the law, he is almost invincible before a jury, and can look back upon many splendid triumphs in the court-room; his thrilling speech during the trial of DOYLE BRYANT and WILEY EVANS, charged with the murder of CHARLES BOONE in the fall of 1873, is remembered here as one of the most brilliant efforts of his professional life. His judgeship carries with it a salary of $5,000 a year, with the necessary traveling expenses.

Wonderful Courage and Presence of Mind.

Youths' Companion.]

It was in India. Dinner was just finished in the mess-room, and several English officers were sitting about the table. Their bronzed faces had the set but not unkindly look common among military men. The conversation, at best, had not been animated, and just now there was a lull, as the night was too hot for small-talk. The Major of the regiment, a clean-cut man of fifty-five years, turned toward his next neighbor at the table, a young subaltern, who was leaning back in his chair with his hands clasped behind his head, staring through his cigar-smoke at the ceiling overhead.

The Major was slowly looking the man over, from his handsome face down, when, with sudden alertness and in a steady voice, he said:—

"Don't move, please, Mr. Carruthers. I want to try an experiment with you; don't move a muscle."

"All right, Major," replied the subaltern, without even turning his eyes; "hadn't the slightest idea of moving, I assure you. What's the game?"

By this time all the others were listening in a lazily expectant way.

"Do you think," continued the Major—and his voice trembled just a little—"do you think you can keep absolutely still for; say, two minutes—to save your life?"

"Are you joking?"

"On the contrary, move a muscle, and you are a dead man. Can you stand the strain?"

The subaltern barely whispered, "Yes," and his face paled slightly.

"Burke," said the Major, addressing an officer across the table, "pour some of that milk into a saucer, and set it on the floor here just back of me. Gently, gently, man! Quiet!"

Not a word was spoken as the officer quietly filled the saucer, carefully walked with it around the table, and set it down on the floor just where the Major had indicated.

Like a marble statue sat the young subaltern in his white linen clothes, while a cobra di capello, which had been crawling up the leg of his trousers, slowly raised its head, then turned, descended to the floor, and glided toward the milk.

Suddenly the silence was broken by the report of the Major's revolver, and the snake lay dead upon the floor.

"Thank you Major," said the subaltern, as the two men warmly shook hands. "You have saved my life."

"You are welcome, my boy," replied the senior; "but you did your share."

Song Lee Paints His House.

San Francisco Chronicle.]

Song Lee keeps a wash-house on Larkin steet. It is quite a pretentious two-story frame building with a peaked shingle-roof. Its owner recently conceived the idea of adding to its attractiveness by sundry exterior coats of high-hued paints.

So now the thing is a perpetual nightmare to all the neighbors and passers-by who see it for the first time. They are startled almost into breathlessness, and are seized with queer optical illusions and visions of awful phantasies that haunt the brain until the dust of Larkin street is shaken from their feet.

The painter tried to make the roof white, but the dirty shingles have defied his skill. With a persistency born of dust and soot, they still show through the white paint in occasional dark patches.

Only a man with the nightmare could have painted the front. The background is a dark, rich green. The door- and window-frames are yellow, trimmed with red. The blinds are blue, the cornice pink, the window-sills black, and the door-steps cream-colored. Other pigments abound in profusion, but even the artist who compounded them is unable to call the wondrous colors by name. The rainbow is simply "not in it" when compared to the front of Song Lee's wash-house.

But this is not all. There is a side-view yet to be described. Every imaginable tint and shade that a brain suffering from the effects of a plum-pudding or mince-pie supper might produce has here been laid on the weather-boards in stripes. The effect is simply maddening. Seen for the first time, a shock like a thousand volts of electricity comes over one, and color blindness ensues at once. Some of the neighbors complain that the colors are so loud as to disturb their slumbers at night.

Song Lee is not unconscious of the attention that his wash-house has excited in the neighborhood. He comes out, takes a look at the awful thing, and then he goes back smiling:

"Me likee allee samee."

"The Silent Dane."

Harper's Magazine.]

In his early manhood Moltke was called "The Silent Dane," and later he was popularly known as "The Great Taciturn;" yet he could speak seven languages fluently. Although one of the world's profoundest and sternest soldiers, he was one of the most modest and affectionate men. Occasionally one might see him in Berlin driving in a plain cab, or sauntering along a principal street, looking in at the shop-windows, but few recognized him. He was as regular as the sun in his daily tasks; and even in the lighter employments of his long life he was ever painstaking and methodical. Out of these traits grew his literary ability, which, besides his letters, produced several valuable military histories.

The crowning honor of his life was Germany's celebration of his 90th anniversary. From the Baltic to the Alps, from the Vosges to the Vistula, every household joined in the jubilee, and hung out the national colors and likenesses of Moltke in flags and torches. Berlin was enthusiastic, and decorated as it had never before been for any private citizen. Germans throughout the world set apart October 26, 1890, as a fete day for the Vaterland, and a day of congratulations and praises of her greatest and most renowned soldier.

During the Berlin jubilee the grim old Field Marshal was taciturn, almost from necessity, being nearly smothered by honors and rich presents; but when the city fathers of Berlin sent him their greetings, accompanied by the sum of 50,000 marks as a charity fund for the aged and infirm, he replied: "Gentlemen, say to your council that this gift touches my heart, and that, of the many and rich presents I have received to day, this is most valued." When, since the death of Washington, has the world seen a more modest, complete and noble life?

"A Hair of the Dog that Bit You."

Philadelphia Record.]

The novel spectacle of a well-known physician of this city extracting poison from one of the deadly rattlesnakes at the Zoological Gardens was witnessed by a large crowd of visitors yesterday. The spectators stood at a respectful distance, for the hideous reptiles hissed viciously, and made every manifestation of the most intense rage.

Just what the doctors do with the poison after they get it is a professional secret that has never leaked out. It is used as a medicine in a certain kind of nervous diseases, so it is said, and as a commercial product the poison is worth several times its weight in first-water diamonds.

The method of obtaining the poison is interesting and exciting. The doctor, who is usually accompanied by head-keeper Byrne, a man thoroughly conversant with the habits of all the reptiles at the Zoological Gardens, approaches the rattlesnake cage with a stick about a yard long, on one end of which is a stout leather loop which tightens when the stick is raised. This is inserted at the top of the cage, and instantly every snake coils itself for a spring, and sends out a warning rattle.

The loop is deftly slipped over the head of a reptile before it has had a chance to spring, and the stick is withdrawn with the "rattler" banging at the end. No time is lost in pulling it out of the cage, as the other enraged snakes would be sure to sink their poisonous fangs into the dangling body of their comrade.

The assistant then holds a large pane of glass in front of the snake, and the doctor dashes his hand violently against the other side of the glass until the animal is beside itself with rage; and, after sending forth the warning rattle, darts its head against the protecting pane, and invariably leaves a tiny drop of poison on its surface. This is carefully collected in a very small vial, and the precious package is stored away in the doctor's safest pocket.

The physician never obtains more than one drop at a visit, as this appears to be enough to make medicine for a long time.

Success Certain.

A practical and helpful gift from a parent to a son would be the following alphabetical list of maxims, printed or written, as a heading to a calendar, or framed and hung upon the wall of his room. It is said that Baron Rothschild had these maxims framed and hung in his house:

Attend carefully to details of your business.
Be prompt in all things.
Consider well; then decide positively.
Dare to do right; fear to do wrong.
Endure trials patiently.
Fight life's battle bravely, manfully.
Go not into the society of the vicious.
Hold integrity sacred.
Injure not another's reputation nor business.
Join hands only with the virtuous.
Keep your mind from evil thoughts.
Lie not for any consideration.
Make few acquaintances.
Never try to appear what you are not.
Observe good manners.
Pay your debts promptly.
Question not the veracity of a friend.
Respect the counsel of your parents.
Sacrifice money rather than principle.
Touch not, taste not, handle not intoxicating drinks.
Use your leisure time for improvement.
Venture not upon the threshold of wrong.
Watch carefully over your passions.
'Xtend to every one a kindly salutation.
Yield not to discouragement.
Zealously labor for the right.
And success is certain.

A Good Dog Story.

A Newfoundland dog was one day sitting on a wooden bridge over a very swift stream, discussing a bone, when a predatory pug came along, and a smart altercation arose over the bone. So violent became the debate that both suddenly overbalanced, and fell into the stream beneath. The nearest landing-place was a hundred yards down, and to it the Newfoundland betook himself without much difficulty, and, after a good shake, was preparing to depart when he suddenly became aware that the pug was having a very hard time of it—wildly beating the water, and showing every symptom of exhaustion. One look was enough. In went the shaggy-coated fellow, and, seizing the other by the collar, brought his late enemy safe to land. The two dogs then eyed each other with indescribable expression for some seconds; then solemnly wagged their respective tails, and with dignity departed.

Pressure of Water.

American Engineer.]

Water serves to convey any pressure or power which may be given to it, whether that pressure is a pumping engine at the end of a main or by means of a column or weight of water above the main contained in a lofty tower or high storage-reservoir. One cubic foot of water weighs sixty-two and one-half pounds, and if the height of the column is increased the pressure upon the base is increased, for every foot thus added, a further sixty-two and one-half pounds. A column of water one square inch in area at base and 2.3 feet high weighs exactly one pound, so that for every increase of height of 2.3 feet a pressure of one pound per square inch is added to the base.

Red Cotton.

For two years or more considerable publicity has been given to and no little interest excited by the discovery of red cotton and the efforts to perpetuate its growth. According to the latest report the several attempts have been successful in the main. A planter at Alpharetta, Ga., has an acre of cotton, every stalk of which is said to be of a deep red color, leaf, ball and bloom. This novel crop is the product of seed derived three years ago from two stalks of red cotton found in a cotton field. If this variety can be perpetuated it will likely mean a fortune to the successful planter.

Origin of "Whig."

St. Louis Republic.]

Several reasons have been assigned to account for the word "Whig," universally known to all the English-speaking people. By some the word is supposed to be a contraction of a longer one, "whiggamore," which, in some parts of England and Scotland, especially Scotland, signifies a drover or herder. It was in 1679 that the word first became common in the British Isles, when the struggle was in progress between the peasantry and the aristocracy to have or not to have the bill passed by Parliament to exclude the Duke of York from the line of succession. All who were opposed to placing the Duke in the line of succession were derisively called "whiggamores," or "drovers," just as the city dude of to-day speaks of the "grangers," the "grays," the "chin-whiskers" and the "hay-seeders."

But the Scotch tradition gives altogether a different reason for the existence of the word. It is this: During the early religious wars in Scotland the weakest of the factions used the words "We Hope In God" as a motto. The initials of these words were placed on their banners thus: "W. H. I. G.," and soon all the followers of that class were given the title of "Whig," which was afterwards attached as a party nickname.

The same Scotch legend entirely upsets the origin of the word "whiggamore," as given above. It is said that the "We Hope In God" party were defeated in their efforts to gain religious liberty, and thereupon took refuge in the Highlands, where stock-raising became their principal industry. In this mountain fastness the Whig leader became known as the "Whiggamore," or "Great Whig," the word "more" attached to whig meaning great, just as McDonald*more signifies the Great McDonald.

Advice for Apprentices—Never Know too Much.

American Art Printer.]

What better advice can we give to you as an apprentice than the above? It may be dressed in all sorts of phrases, or called by rough and pet names, yet its importance, as regards the future of the attentive apprentice, is as explicit as our language can possibly make it.

It is the advice a wise father and a loving mother would bestow on the boy of their hearts, when about to enter the great arena of life to wrestle with its possibilities.

It is fraught with meaning, for it prepares the youth for the trying emergencies of laying the foundation of a future greatness or a future failure. "Never Know Too Much."

The observance of this injunction, dear young friend, will lead you into the ways of knowledge, into paths of distinctive greatness, and into fields of success which at present are shrouded in mystery.

It is a pitiable sight to see a young man, just emerging from apprenticeship, so puffed up with his importance that he needlessly draws comparisons with his betters as to his skill as a workman. This fallacy, for such it is, has led many a young man into endless trouble, and it will continue to do so. It has not only brought down upon him the enmity of his superiors in the workroom but it has also dwarfed his usefulness.

Learn all you can about your business. Do this as unpretentiously as possible, but with assiduity, and you will be astonished at this discovery, which has been the inevitable lot of the best living printers, namely: that, after all, you may then really know very little.

Great Financial Crashes.

The Calcutta failures in 1831 involved $75,000,000.

The failures in Holland in 1773 exceeded $50,000,000.

The English failures in 1847 involved $100,000,000.

The "wildcat" prices in the United States in 1837 caused all the banks to close.

"Black Friday" in Wall street was on September 24, 1869. Fortunes were swept away like chaff.

The shoe and leather trade crisis in Boston in 1883 caused losses amounting to over $10,000,000.

The Overend, Gurney & Co. failure, nearly a quarter of a century ago, involved others, costing upward of $500,000,000.

In 1799, in Hamburg, there were eighty two failures, involving $10,000,000. There was a panic in Liverpool in the same year.

In 1814 250 banks suspended payment in England; and in 1725, at Manchester, failures occurred to the amount of $10,000,000.

The Grant & Ward failure in New York city in 1884 involved many financial and business houses and a loss of over $25,000,000.

In 1839 the Bank of England was saved by the Bank of France. A panic in France during the same year caused ninety-three companies to fail for the sum of $30,000,000.

Puffs of an Engine.

The number of puffs given by a locomotive depends upon the circumference of its driving wheels and their speed, says an exchange. No matter what the rate of speed may be, for every one round of the driving-wheels a locomotive will give four puffs—two for each cylinder, the cylinders being double.

The sizes of driving-wheels vary, some being 18, 19, 20 and even 22 feet in circumference, though they are generally made in or about 20. The express speed varies from 52 to 54 miles an hour.

Taking the average circumference of the driving-wheel to be 20 feet, and the speed per hour 50 miles, a locomotive will give, going at express speed, 880 puffs per minute or 52,800 per hour, the wheels revolving 13,200 times in sixty minutes, giving 1,056 puffs per mile.

Therefore an express going from London to Liverpool, a distance of 201¼ miles, will throw out 213,048 puffs before arriving at its destination. During the tourist season of 1888 the journey from London to Edinburgh was accomplished in less than eight hours, the distance being 401 miles, giving a speed throughout of 50 miles an hour.

A locomotive of an express train from London to Edinburgh, subject to the above conditions, will give 423,456 puffs.

THE OBSERVER.

Z. W. WHITEHEAD, SOLE OWNER.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

Established in 1825 by E. J. Hale, Sr.

Published Every Thursday at 19 Green Street (Observer Building.)

Z. W. WHITEHEAD, J. H. MYROVER, } Editors.

"The Observer" is the second oldest paper in the State; is read by nine-tenths of the reading people of Cumberland, and circulates extensively throughout the counties of Robeson, Richmond, Moore, Harnett, Bladen, Columbus, New Hanover, Pender, Duplin, Sampson, Johnston, Anson, Chatham Montgomery and Stanly, and Marion and Marlboro counties, S. C.

NEWSPAPER CHANGES.

In the Winston Twin-City Daily the statement was first made that Maj. P. H. Duffey, of the Wilmington Star, would, on the 20th inst., assume the editorial chair of the Progressive Farmer, and this statement has been repeated confidently in other quarters, coupled with the conjecture that it means the consolidation of the Star and Messenger. This conjecture we feel disposed to discredit positively, though we cannot speak with authority, for there is an extensive territory accessible to these excellent papers, and there should be ample patronage for both. While not underestimating the value of Maj. Duffey's services to the Star, we know the ability of its proprietor, Mr. Bernard, who is an experienced journalist, well-equipped in all the details of the business.

Of course we would be the heartiest of well-wishers for the success of such a consolidation, should it take place—and, with the combined resources and first-rate capacity hitherto controlling the two papers separately, the prospect of success would be gratifying; but we should greatly regret to see the individuality of the Star lost, and its light merged in that of any other publication, however meritorious. That light has shone out faithfully for us through many dark clouds and very tempestuous weather, and the paper has attained its present enviable position through much political tribulation and sorrow, and an unfaltering steadfastness of devotion to the welfare of its people (we make special mention of the Star not invidiously but because its proprietor has been a lifelong friend and was a fellow-townsman, and in his career we feel a near home interest).

The tendency toward consolidation and contraction in the newspaper field may find its solution in the theory that there are more newspapers in North Carolina than the people ought to be called upon to sustain, or that there is a failure to accord adequate support to those eminently deserving it. Both these suppositions are true in a degree. There are some papers in the State that are absolutely not worth the material they are printed on—loose, slovenly, inaccurately-compiled rehashes of stale news (?), with little or no attention given to proof-reading, while their editorial columns are characterized by neither ability, good taste nor sound commonsense. Such are "popular educators" with a vengeance! But for such journals as the Raleigh News and Observer and North Carolina Intelligencer, and the Wilmington Star and Messenger, there should be no necessity of consolidation: so ample should be the field that each in its separate sphere would find generous remuneration for the arduous labors of its managers.

Perhaps an explanation of the general and too evident want of prosperity in the State press may be partly found in a fact recently alluded to by the Wilmington Messenger—that a Southern newspaper, published outside of North Carolina, has 9,000 subscribers within its borders. Commenting on this, the Charlotte Chronicle states that, with one exception, no North Carolina paper can show as large a subscription list as this 9,000, and adds that the Southern journal in question cares nothing for the welfare of this State, and would unhesitatingly publish any sensational story or "fake," to its injury and discredit. If we have the right paper in our mind's eye (and we think we have) the strictures of the Chronicle are no more than just. If we mistake not it is the same paper that, publishing President Cleveland's inaugural address, slapped right into the centre of it its own "gift enterprise" advertisement of premiums to new subscribers! It was not a very important matter, to be sure; but there was such an offensive coarseness and want of delicacy about this stroke of "business" that we have never had any use for the paper since that time.

SEEKING GREAT CENTRES.

The New York Herald recently called attention to the fact that Americans are rapidly becoming urban in tastes and habits, and that the increase in the number of the inhabitants in cities and towns during the past decade was out of proportion to the increase in the country districts. In 1858 we had not a city with 1,000,000 inhabitants, and only seven numbering 100,000; now there are three cities in the United States containing 1,000,000 inhabitants or more, while there are over thirty with populations exceeding 100,000.

This has long been a noticeable fact in the old-settled countries of the Continent, but it is a little singular that the same should be true of a nation where the tillers of the soil are largely in the majority, with such an almost boundless expanse of territory to meet the wants of immigrants, and to provide homes for the discontented and disappointed of the great centres of trade.

There can be no doubt that the trend and drift of the day is cityward—whether for good or evil remains to be seen. Even "Parnassus" wants to hear the roar of traffic, the rumble of the omnibus and the jingle of the street-car bell, and the high schools and colleges are seeking foundations for new buildings where "men most do congregate." Trinity and Wake Forest Colleges, the Baptist Female University, Bingham and Davis Schools, the Industrial School for Women, and now Davidson College—all, in their great competition of letters, seek to touch elbows with the world in its feverish strife for material gain.

This is defended by the argument that the well-furnished scholar must be something better than a bookworm, and that he can attain the requisite polish and finish only by judiciously commingling with the world in its best and most varied social aspects—while the opponents of what they deem dangerous innovation object that, over and above the thousand and one influences diverting the mind from study, the towns and cities offer perilous temptations to youth not found in rural districts. We will wait and see.

ISSUES OF THE DAY.

It is very certain that our present Governor cannot be accused of junketing during his term of office, unless the Secretary of State calls the General Assembly together to fill the vacant office of Lieutenant Governor. As the matter stands now, Gov. Holt is "in prison bounds," and can't even step across the line to make that ever-memorable observation to the Governor of South Carolina.

The dissolute Prince of Wales, noted for his vices as well as his royal blood traced back to William, the Conqueror of Harold at the battle of Hastings, appears as a witness before the Lord Chief Justice of England in a cheating baccarat trial.—Shelby Aurora.

The conquering William wasn't thinking much of his own or his wife's relations just then, for about the time of the Battle of Hastings Harold made it pretty hot for him for awhile; but along in those days most of the ancient kin of the august Prince of Wales might have been found eating die bratwurst und braten and drinking lager bier and Rhine wine in the little principality of Hanover (if it then existed as such) on the continent of Europe.

The State Normal and Industrial School for Women commences its career—a career of great usefulness, we hope—under very bright auspices. In our judgment, the trustees could not have acted more wisely in choosing a president of the institution, if all the leading educators of the State had passed in review before them, than they have done in the election of Prof. C. D. McIver to that position. His labors have been great and his services distinguished in the cause of education in North Carolina; and, with the prime of life yet before him, we may hardly set bounds to what his abilities and zeal shall accomplish. His election is, too, a graceful recognition of his work in this special field, for to him more than to any other one man in the whole State is due the last General Assembly's appropriation to the Industrial School for women.

The "City of Flowers," by its liberality and public spirit, has secured the location of the school, and, besides its eligibility as a great railway centre, the pupils could have no more pleasant abiding-place during the prosecution of their studies than Greensboro.

Long Staple.

Mr. James Evans had on exhibition here last Thursday a stalk of cotton measuring 24½ inches in length of the long staple variety, full of forms and with ample evidence of blossoms in a very few days. Mr. Evans this stock is a sample of a four acre field, near Idaho, and considers it "ahead of anything" ever seen in these parts as early as June 11th. If anybody can beat it, show your hand. It is safe to say, however, that the cotton crop is fully 25 per cent. short of last year's, from present indications.

The Cumberland County Agricultural Society.

For the Observer]

About one year ago a communication appeared in the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER in reference to the origin of the Cumberland County Agricultural and Mechanical Fair. At that time I wrote out a full history of its inception, intending forwarding it for publication. On second thought I concluded to wait and see if some one conversant with its rise and progress would not enlighten the public; but, as the matter rested there, I propose copying my letter and forwarding it to you, so as to set the matter at rest for all time.

I spent from 1845 to 1849 in the central portion of the State of New York, a few miles south of the city of Utica. While there I had the privilege of attending the county fairs, or gatherings, as they were then called. Returning home to my native town after casting my maiden vote for Zack Taylor, I established the first foundry and machine shop in Fayetteville. At that time there were in existence two societies—the Cumberland County Agricultural and the Fayetteville Mechanics' Benevolent Association. The writer joined the latter society. At that time the Cumberland County Agricultural Society was dead, and the Fayetteville Mechanics' Benevolent Association on its last legs.

Duncan McNeill was President and J. W. Lett Secretary and Treasurer of the Fayetteville Mechanics' Benevolent Association. They met once a month at the President's house, now owned by A. A. McKethan. The attendants at the first meeting after my becoming a member were Duncan McNeill, N. Barge, J. S. Dunn, John Minor, J. W. Lett and the writer—six of us—the membership not increasing or decreasing at any subsequent meeting.

The writer introduced the subject of county fairs, giving an account of those he attended at the North, and offered a resolution that a committee be appointed to open correspondence with the officers of the C. C. A. S., with the view of uniting forces and holding a yearly agricultural and mechanics' fair. This resolution after being discussed by every member present, including the president, was carried unanimously. The writer was chairman of this committee. Now came the tug of war to find the presiding officer of the C. C. A. S. At first it appeared smooth sailing, as every one we made inquiry of said Dr. Benjamin Robinson held that honorable position. On forwarding our letter, with resolutions, we received in reply: "I am not the president of the C. C. A. S.—resigned two years ago; don't know who my successor is," &c., &c. (I am only giving substance of his reply.) With diligent inquiry, covering three weeks of hard work, we found the man in the person of Judge Robert Strange. On calling on him we obtained the following facts, as stated by the Judge: "Some two or three years ago the C. C. A. S. elected me to succeed Dr. B. Robinson. I do not know whether they have held a meeting since then, and presume I am still their president—will find out and communicate with you." In a few days we received a communication from the President, Judge Strange, saying: "I will do all I can to carry out the object in view."

This letter, together with all correspondence on the subject, was published in the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER.

The F. M. B. A. ceased to be an organization, being merged in the C. C. A. & M. A.

I stated that J. W. Lett was secretary. Mr. Henry Sedberry administered on his estate, and presume he can find the secretary's book amongst his papers. They might throw additional light on the subject. The above is written from memory, and the facts are substantially as stated above. The Fayetteville Mechanics' Benevolent Association started the ball, and the best men in our town were members of that Association, combining with others to make it a success. Yours truly,

H. G. H.

Here is Some News for You.

CHICAGO, June 15—A Topeka, Kan., special says the returns received by the Alliance Executive Committee from sub-Alliances, which were asked to pass judgment on the work done by the Cincinnati Convention, are far from encouraging to the People's Party politicians. It is known that twenty five sub-Alliances have repudiated the third party movement. Fifteen of these have reported to the State Alliance, and ten to the Republican Central Committee.

The Cloud County Alliance has adopted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, The South was not reported in the Cincinnati Conventon; and whereas, we believe the third party will disrupt the Republican party to the benefit of the Democratic party, therefore be it

Resolved, That we abandon the Third party to return to our past affiliations.

These resolutions, it is said, have double significance because Cloud county is the home of Senator Wheeler, the only Alliance member of the Senate, and has always been considered the People's party stronghold.

Another Murder.

ROCKINGHAM, N. C., June 15.—On Saturday night Albert Smith, a tenant on the plantation of Henry Fairley, about two miles north of Laurinburg, was brutally murdered. His head showed that he had been struck with some heavy, blunt instrument. There were evidences showing that he did not die instantly, but had clawed up the ground with his hands. He had just left the house of John Kelly, who had recently been jailed in Lumberton and acquitted of the murder of Simeon Conoley. The victim was a respectable white man, and leaves a wife and two children.

When found, Smith had an open knife under him and a bottle of whiskey in his pocket. His skull was broken with a piece of a fence rail, which was found near him. He was comparatively a stranger in these parts, having come from one of the western counties. Charlie Allen, colored, is now in the lock-up here, on suspicion of being the murderer. The coroner's jury will finish its investigation next Thursday.

Why his Wife is "Fidgety."

I have the best cook in the town,
Whose bread is delicious and white;
Her coffee is fragrant and brown,
Her pastry a perfect delight.
But she daily complains of the worry they bring—
She's my own darling wife, but a fidgety thing!

Your wife is worn out, and needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the only medicine guaranteed to cure debilitated women. How many overworked American ladies we see with lack-lustre eyes and haggard faces, growing old before their time, from those exhausting ailments that men know nothing of. They can be permanently cured by this remedy, as numberless grateful women will attest. Price refunded, if it fails to give satisfaction in every case. See guarantee printed on bottle-wrapper.

Guaranteed Cure for La Grippe.

We authorize our advertised druggist to sell you Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds upon this condition: If you are afflicted with La Grippe and will use this remedy according to directions, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We make this offer because of the wonderful success of Dr. King's New Discovery during last season's epidemic. Have heard of no case in which it failed. Try it. Trial bottles free at B. E. Sedberry & Son's Drug Store. Large size 50c. and $1.00.

It is conjectured that a specific may yet be found for every ill that flesh is heir to. However this may be, certainly the best specific yet found for diseases of the blood is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and most diseases originate from impure blood.

Some Strange Misnomers.

Much of the Russian leather comes from Connecticut, Bordeaux wine from California, Italian marble from Kentucky, French lace from New York and Spanish mackerel from the New Jersey coast. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery comes from Buffalo, N. Y., but there is nothing in its name to criticise, for it is truly golden in value, as thousands gladly testify. Consumption is averted by its use, and it has wrought many positive cures. It corrects torpid liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, banishes dyspepsia and scrofula, renews the lease of life and tones up the system as nothing else will do. What is more, it is guaranteed to do all this, or the price is refunded.

To Dispel Colds,

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, use Syrup of Figs.

WINSTON-SALEM,

The Present and Permanent Commercial Metropolis and Industrial Centre of the Old North State.

SHE NOW HAS ONE FACTORY FOR EVERY 140 PEOPLE IN TOWN.

There are 10,000 more people in the twin cities now than in 1880—a 200 per cent. increase. This growth was made without any artificial aids, and represents just that many more manufacturers, business men and wage workers. Undeveloped coal fields, immense deposits of magnetic iron ore and acres of lime cliffs in the neighborhood, suggest possibilities in iron industries which are demonstrated in the development of new towns everywhere in the South.

WINSTON-SALEM

IS ON THREE TRUNK-LINES OF RAILROAD, AND ALREADY ENJOYS:

Electric Lights, Electric Street Railways, Water-Works, Telephone Exchange, two Fire Companies with Steamers, Mineral Springs, etc. Factories, store and residences are being completed at the rate of three per week, and this is far short of demand. Terrritory tributary to the city—entire Piedmont North Carolina and Southwestern Virginia, while railroads give it connections with all important lines of road North, South and West.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

☞ Remember the meeting in Williams Hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and give encouragement to the object in view by your presence.

Undertakers' Association.

At the annual meeting of the State Undertakers' Association, held at Greensboro last week, Mr. H. E. Sheetz, a citizen of Fayetteville and a prominent member of the organization, was elected Treasurer for the ensuing term.

Died in a Distant Land.

News has been received here of the recent death, from la grippe, of Mr. Geo. A. Downing, a native of this county, who went from this section to Alabama a few years ago, and removed thence to Silverton, Oregon—his place of residence when he died.

Off for Campo Bello.

Mr. T. A. Barker of the Hotel LaFayette has gone to Campo Bello, Me., whither he goes to take charge of and open for this summer's business his celebrated summer-resort hotels there. Mr. Barker is a capital hotelist, and the success of the elegant new Hotel LaFayette here is ample evidence of this fact.

Steam Laundry.

Mr. John Underwood and his associates have subscribed the necessary amount to and organized a joint stock company in this city for owning and operating a steam laundry. The order has been placed for the machinery, which will be shipped in a few days and placed in position without delay. A long-felt want is thus to be supplied in Fayetteville.

Off for Morehead.

A party consisting of the following persons left for Morehead Monday, to be present at the opening of the Teachers' Assembly there this week: Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Slocomb; Misses Bertie McDuffie, Laura Glover, Mary Lilly Taylor and Della Matthews, and Messrs. John Underwood and A. J. Pemberton. Quite a large party leave this morning, and will hear Rev. Dr. DeWitt Talmage at Morehead City to-night.

To Test the Purchase Tax.

A number of the merchants of Fayetteville met in the market-house here last Thursday to hear the report of the canvassing committee, appointed at a former meeting to ascertain what amount the Fayetteville merchants would contribute to a suit to be brought for testing the merchants' purchase-tax. The report showed a subscription of about $130.00, and Mr. F. R. Rose was appointed to represent Fayetteville on the advisory committee.

Degree Conferred.

The faculty of Trinity College have conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. W. H. Moore, pastor of Hay Street Methodist Church in this city. This gifted minister is not "to the manner born"—in fact, his residence with us is numbered only by months as yet—but Fayetteville people already know him well enough to attest emphatically that this degree conferred is in his case no perfunctory honor but a distinction richly deserved.

The "Vance Souvenir."

Maj. Jno. N. Prior, of the well-known jewelry house of W. Prior & Son, has recently patented, and will soon have in stock and for sale, a "Vance Souvenir" silver spoon, of which we have been permitted to examine the advance model. The workmanship is beautiful, making a very handsome piece of table service, and the head and face of Vance surmounting it is a fine specimen of work—the Senator himself acknowledging it to be his best likeness.

His Pen will be Missed.

We regret to read the announcement in yesterday's North Carolina Baptist that Rev. W. B. Oliver retires from the editorial chair, which he has occupied so ably and acceptably for the past three months. Rev. T. B. Newberry, Manager of the Baptist, announces that the paper will hereafter have the name of no editor at the head of its initial column, while the Baptist will be open to communications in furtherance of the objects for which it was founded—subject to the judgment of the Manager as to their fitness and propriety.

Work to Commence Soon.

Since our last issue the plans and arrangements for rebuilding the cotton-seed oil mills here have all materialized, and work on the new plant will begin in a few days. The order for the machinery has been placed, and calls for a twenty-ton plant. The mills will be under the personal supervision of Mr. N. B. Alexander, an experti n the business, and who formerly had charge of the mills here. Moneyed men are behind the enterprise, and nothing will be left undone to make it a success. The loss of no enterprise in the community could have been felt more than that of the cotton seed oil mills, and our readers in town and throughout the county will hail the news of rebuilding with delight.

"Backbone."

We feel that we are about to get right into a failure in addressing ourself to one of the most difficult tasks of our experience—the preparation of a competent criticism on the lecture of Rev. Thos. Dixon, pastor of the 23rd Street Baptist Church of New York City, in Williams Hall on Wednesday evening, 10th inst. As a good old Robeson county friend once said after hearing one of Vance's grand stump speeches during the gubernatorial campaign of 1876, "He tuk and put a spell on us." The lecturer took possession of us about 3½ seconds after we introduced him to his audience, and we haven't quite tore loose yet.

Mr. Dixon is tall and very slender, with the sweep of limb and stretch of arm which add greatly to the effectiveness of a forensic speaker. The normal expression of his face is serious, almost melancholy, his hair and eyes jet black—the latter piercing and very expressive. Without being musical or particularly pleasant in its tones, his voice is very good, of fine compass, and he has it absolutely under his control.

Mr. Dixon wastes little or no time in preamble or studied effort to place himself en rapport with his audience, but straightway plunges in medias res, and carries his hearers with him over the broad extent of field which he occupies by the force of his intense earnestness; and, with marvelous rapidity of utterance, he thrills his hearers with his impassioned oratory, startles with the vigor of his invective, and relaxes the strain in a flood of irresistible merriment by his exquisite touches of humor. In this last great gift in the hands of a skillful speaker Mr. Dixon's powers are almost unrivaled, assisted as they are by a very mobile countenance, capable of facial changes which admit of perfection in mimicry and great dramatic expression. He is, too, a humorist from the very evident genuine love of fun, which he enjoys with as keen a zest as his hearers.

His faculty of location and description is remarkable, and his pictures—flashing one after another in a panaroma of indescribable brilliancy—were very graphic portrayals of character and scene. We do not remember to have heard in many years anything finer than his tribute to Alexander Stephens, while the lecture's climax—the wrecked train and the engine, the overturned monster sobbing out its life on the mountain-side—combined all the beauties of a poetic imagination, a mind stored with rich rhetorical figures and a capability of great dramatic force.

Mr. Dixon carries no manuscript, and speaks without notes; his lecture occupies one hour and a half, but through it all we recall but one slip of grammar, but one syntactical error:—where he used does in place of the plural do. This evidences an almost absolute correctness of diction attained by few public speakers.

The Raleigh Excursionists.

At 10:08 o'clock on Tuesday morning last the train of nine cars, bearing about 500 persons composing the excursionists from Raleigh, under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the Edenton Street Methodist Church of that city, drew up at the passenger depot of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, where a large crowd of their friends and acquaintances, and the members of the congregation and Sunday-school of the Hay Street Methodist Church, were assembled to meet them.

At 10:30 o'clock Rev. W. H. Moore, the pastor, in a graceful speech in the church bade the visitors welcome, and a fitting and happy response was made by Mr. Donald W. Bain, Treasurer of the State.

The Eccles Park and Boating Club tendered to our Raleigh guests the freedom of the park and stream, with the use of the boats, during the day; and at 12 o'clock the Independent Light Infantry Cornet Band, Mr. H. R. Novitzky leader, gave them a delightful complimentary concert from the stand in front of the Park House. During the afternoon the railroad authorities ran a train down to the Cape Fear and across, giving any who might wish to take the ride an opportunity of seeing the river and iron bridge.

In the afternoon there was a game of base-ball between a Fayetteville nine and the nine from Raleigh, resulting in a victory for the latter by long odds.

We were all glad to see our neighbors of the State capital, and we hope that they found their day's "outing" pleasant. There was no discount on the general appearance of the crowd (of course the deportment was blameless)—it was a good-looking body of folks—and our eyes are not yet too dim to see that Raleigh had done itself honor by sending scores of pretty girls down to us to spend the day.

A "Scorcher."

Monday was recorded in the newspapers as the hottest June day of many years all over the Northern States, the heat being almost unendurable, with the thermometer ranging from 90° to 99°, in Vermont, New Hampshire and other portions of New England.

Here there was a difference, as on that day it was quite tolerable with a pleasant breeze a good part of the time, but Tuesday, 16th, was very hot, and, with the large number of excursionists in town, crowds surrounded the soda-water fountains at the drug-stores, while the great desideratum through the day was finding a cool place.

Wednesday "came to time," and beat Tuesday by two laps.

A Good Officer Retires.

Capt. W. A. Johnson has resigned his position as commanding officer of the Clinton Light Infantry, his private business not permitting him to devote the time requisite to the performance of the duties of the office. He was an excellent officer, and withal, when in uniform, one of the handsomest in all the State Guard.

Let's Move Forward!

The citizens of Fayetteville have every reason to feel grateful to the officers and members of the Cumberland County Agricultural & Mechanical Society for the large measure of success which in the past has attended the annual exhibits of this time-honored institution, and in the future should rally to its support with renewed interest and determination to make the approaching one and each succeeding fair eclipse all former efforts.

In point of merit, magnitude and attractions generally the Cumberland Fair stands second to none, and is everywhere regarded as the peer of all similar organizations in the State—a position it has occupied in the minds and hearts of the people for years and years. Bequeathed to the present generation by an illustrious ancestry, it certainly devolves upon us to cherish and foster it as a proud legacy, and to look well to our laurels that its high standard of excellence and usefulness be maintained in the future, at all events. To this end we must have the cordial support and cooperation of our people of both town and county.

The stimulation and impetus given by this society to agriculture, horticulture, viticulture, the dairy, fancy needle work, the mechanic and decorative arts, live stock, poultry and a thousand other things could scarcely be estimated; while its annual meetings recall scenes and recollections of the long ago, and revive, to the satisfaction and delight of all, memories of the most pleasant associations, bringing together, face to face once more, comrades and friends of by-gone days.

With a view to ascertaining what additional attractions can be offered this year the executive committee, at a special meeting Monday, appointed a committee to wait on the business men of Fayetteville at once, and see what aid can be secured in the way of special premiums, which are to be placed on exhibition in Floral Hall during the Fair, with the givers' names placarded thereon. Now it behooves our people, individually and collectively, to subscribe liberally in special premiums in order that additional inducements may be offered this year

"Lead Us Not into Temptation."

The clouds rolled in imposing majesty off toward Hope Mills, except where the "white caps" along their skirts skurried hither and thither like videttes on the flanks of an army; the sullen thunder's mutterings died away in silence; the rain was over, and the gutters sent swift rivers whirling on to the sewers of the city. Down a lane in the suburbs a boy with a milk-can sauntered with that deliberate pace so characteristic of the district telegraph messenger, and showing how well and fully he realized that "time was made for slaves."

Presently a gleam of interest twinkles in his big, round blue eye, for just in front of him, in the shelter of a mimosa tree, a mocking-bird is pluming itself for an evening concert, and the ready juvember is in a trice brought to light—when hist! what new figure comes athwart the horizon of his vision? In a garden to his left one of the "city fathers," a 300-pounder, "larding the lean earth as he walks," is standing with a basket of tomato-plants to set out. "He stoops to conquer," bending over to his task, and the boy's fingers tingle with eagerness to try his marksmanship. He turns away his head as one who says, "get thee behind me, Satan!" but his feet gravitate across the lane. He kneels at the fence; he takes aim through the palings; he draws the juvember taut, even as the bolts were drawn to a head in the bows of our Anglo-Saxon ancestors at Agincourt, and—"! ! ! Ouch! By the great Jerusalem! If I only could just get hold of that—!!"

* * There's a streak of boy and milk-can, at a 2:40 gait, down the lane to the corner; from its dazzling setting of gleaming leaf and glittering diamond rain-drop the mocking-bird pours forth its soul in pulsating waves of melody; while Falstaff in the garden, Goliath struck by the catapult of this mischievous errant David, in mute appeal for vengeance stands with his hands upraised to high heaven.

Festival and Concert.

Under the auspices of the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry and the ladies of the community an entertainment will be given to-morrow evening, on the lawn in front of the Park House, which gives promise, nay assurance, of a very pleasant evening to all who may attend. Ice-cream, cake and other pleasant refreshments will be served, which, after the manner of the feasts of enchantment and the banquets of magicians in the "Arabian Nights," one may enjoy to the strains of melody gentle as the sighings of the Æolian harp, ravishing as the "music of the spheres."

From its very full and complete repertoire the Independent Light Infantry Band has arranged a most attractive programme of selected pieces, "from grave to gay," for the better entertainment of the guests during the evening, which will make its efforts on this occasion surpass even all previous performances. As both festival and concert are to be al fresco, which, being interpreted in sensible language, means "all out-doors," there will be no charge for admittance, but it is hoped that all will go prepared to eat and listen very generously. The object to which the proceeds will be devoted—raising a fund to uniform the band—is one which touches our pride; for, as these rivals of the Marines and other famed corps will inevitably be wanted at large gatherings all over the country as soon as their excellence becomes known, it behooves us to see to it that they go away from home well-dressed.

☞ Remember the meeting in Williams Hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and give encouragement to the object in view by your presence.

Diversity of Taste.

Visiting not long since in the country, we were the central figure (being "company") of quite a large gathering of friends and acquaintances, among whom the merits of the OBSERVER came up for discussion. As long as that enterpising paper was brought "on the carpet," we ventured to ask a few modest questions with a view to developing the extent of the diversity of taste in reading—and with this result:

Four of the crowd (made up of both sexes) preferred the leaded editorial column of "News and Comment" on the OBSERVER'S 1st page; five considered the literary selections on the 1st page the best, and were warm in praise of the taste and care displayed in the "get-up" of that department; one wanted to get the regular editorial columns of the 2nd page under his eye the first thing; six considered the local (3rd) page worth all the rest of the paper; four never failed to read the selections of poetry, making it a habit to clip out the very best for preservation—and, curiously enough, three out of this four were males. Strange to say, two confessed to a distaste for communications, and never read correspondence unless some all-absorbing subject is getting a "shaking-up." "It takes all sorts of people to make a world," and certainly it takes all sorts of readers to make up the subscription-books of the modern newspaper.

But just here we have discovered the reason that not a few men of excellent capacity fail signally as journalists. They take no account of this diversity of taste in reading, and many an editor makes up his paper precisely as if he were to be its sole reader. He stands within a charmed circle which no one shall enter, and if anyone does enter (if this is not a "bull") he departs mighty quick, and leaves the lonely occupant to starve to death.

In matters of principle the successful newspaper man will exhibit the "backbone" so eloquently treated by Mr. Dixon a few evenings since, and will not permit himself to budge an inch, be the popular clamor and pressure what they may; but in pleasing the fancy, gratifying the taste and convincing the judgment of his patrons he should display the versatility that allows him to be "all things to all men."

Religious Notes.

Rev. W. B. Oliver, the eloquent pastor of the 1st Baptist Church of this city, visited Wilmington last week, and occupied Dr. Pritchard's pulpit last Sunday—and of his sermons the Wilmington Star of Tuesday says:

Rev. W. B. Oliver, of Fayetteville, preached two very fine sermons at the First Baptist Church Sunday, in the absence of Dr. Pritchard, who was in Columbia, S. C., and preached to students of the University of South Carolina.

The Charlotte meetings of Evangelist Fife have been productive of great results—in fact, his great labors nowhere else in North Carolina have given him more cause for congratulation. Last Sunday's Charlotte Chronicle has the following:

To-night Mr. Fife holds his last service. The churches will all be closed and a union service held at the Tabernacle. During the meeting there have been 500 conversions and reclamations. Mr. Fife has done great good here, and has made a deep impression. The praise service last night was very interesting. Mr. Bilhorn, whose singing has been such a beautiful part of the services, has impressed all with his deep consecration to the Master's work. He not only praises God with his voice but with his whole heart. He is a thorough Bible student, and a power in the work.

Rev. F. M. Royall, of Sampson county, a graduate of Wake Forest College, filled Rev. W. B. Oliver's pulpit last Sunday morning and evening, and he greatly pleased his congregations, accustomed though they are to their own gifted pastor. The sermons of Mr. Royall were most excellent, sensible and thoroughly considered, and he gives promise of developing great strength in the pulpit of the Baptist Church.

"Grimalkin Grim."

Mr. G. S. Deming sends us the following graphic recital of a remarkable incident coming under his observation on Tuesday, 9th inst.:

A strange freak of a cat occurred at the shops of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway this morning. Two young men, apparently from the country, whose names I did not learn, came to the shops, followed by a cat, which, they said, had followed them from Mims's Pond, distant nearly a mile. While the young men were standing in front of the stationary engine, attentively watching its operations, suddenly the cat sprang upon one of them, and bit him severely on the thigh, causing the blood to flow freely, and also leaving the marks of its teeth. Of course we didn't let the cat get away. It ran under a pile of timber; and, while we were trying to get it out, it would seize hold of whatever was thrust at it—but we finally succeeded in killing his catship.

This looks very much like rabies, instances of which are becoming alarmingly frequent throughout the State, and the hydrophobic bite of a cat is said to be even more virulent and generally fatal than that of a dog.

The Band Concerts.

The delightful concerts given each week by the Independent Light Infantry Cornet Band, of which Mr. H. R. Novitzky is the very finished and capable leader, with Mr. D. F. Wemyss assistant leader, never fail to attract large crowds, and with good reason. It is seldom that one has an opportunity of listening to finer music, and every succeeding performance, in the opinion of the hearers, surpasses the last.

Personal Pencilings.

Maj. Geo. H. Hall, of Ivanhoe, was in the city this week.

We and any number of others are glad to see Mr. A. D. Black in town this week.

Mr. G. W. Wightman, resident at Pine Bluff, Ark., during the cotton season, is at home for a visit.

Messrs. Henry Raukin and J. A. McPherson, Jr., are at home for vacation from Davidson College.

Mr. E. T. Huggins, of Wilmington, is visiting Fayetteville for a day or two on his way home from Davidson College.

Mrs. J. A. White, of Oxford, has been making a visit to the family of her father, Mr. J. D. Williams, on Haymount.

Mrs. E. L. Pemberton is spending some time at the Sound. Her youngest child has been for some time, we are sorry to know, in delicate health.

Capt. Whitaker, of the Atlantic Coast Line, has moved his family to Fayetteville where they expect to reside in the future. We gladly welcome them to our midst.

Among the excursionists on Tuesday we were glad to see Mr. Jno. Y. McRae, the Raleigh druggist, who embraced the opportunity to make a visit to his former home.

Mr. Elliot Daingerfield, formerly of Fayetteville, but now a resident of New York city, and a portrait and landscape painter of skill and repute, made a visit to friends and relatives in this city last week.

Will the person having in possession a copy of "Lawson's History," belonging to the late D. G. MacRae, confer a favor by returning the same to Miss Annie MacRae or Col. C. W. Broadfoot?

The Davis Monument Meeting.

Bear in mind the Jeff Davis Monument meeting, appointed for this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Williams Hall, and be kind enough to make your business and other arrangements such that they will not militate against your spending an hour in furtherance of the laudable and patriotic object of rearing a monument to the memory of the South's great leader and most illustrious chieftain.

Business men, heads of families, parents, young men, young women and children—all should feel an interest in this good work, and be present this afternoon.

It was to the people of Fayetteville that ex-President Davis—patriot, statesman, scholar, soldier and christian gentleman that he was—addressed his last eloquent public message, and surely it would be eminently fitting and proper that our people subscribe fully their quota to the erection of a monument, that while its base is on the ground, its top will touch the skies; such a monument as would do honor and credit to Mr. Davis and his brave followers from Big Bethel to Appomattox, for in honoring their memory we honor ourselves.

List of Letters.

Following is the list of unclaimed letters remaining in the Fayetteville postoffice June 15th, 1891:

A Love Song In M Flat.

"My modest, matchless Madeline!
Mark my melodious midnight moans;
Much may my melting music mean—
My modulated monotones."

This young man stayed out too late, serenading his lady love. He caught a cold, which developed into catarrh, but he cured it with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, a sovereign specific for chronic cases, "Cold in the Head," Catarrhal Headache. It corrects the tainted breath, stops the offensive discharges, heals the irritated throat and nose, leaving the head clear and smell and taste unimpaired. It costs but 50 cents, and the proprietors offer in good faith $500 for a case they cannot cure.

STOLEN!

One bright medium-size BAY HORSE, nice mane and tail, rather long-bodied, carries himself well and is very spirited, and is between 7 and 9 years old; one Columbus wine-colored phæton road-cart and cheap set of harness, stolen by a man giving his name as Lossan Martin, who is of slender build, untidy and dull appearance, reddish complexion, about 5 feet 11 inches high, 21 or 22 years old and weighs about 130 lbs. When last seen a dudish negro boy was with him; had on a black sack suit and of a boyish look. A liberal reward will be paid for his arrest or capture of the property.

Sand is but sand,
Though the wind, passing by,
Should bear it above
To the stars of the sky;
But, tried by the truth
And the testings of fame,
Forgotten it falls
To the soil whence it came.

Though obscurity trample
And tread upon worth,
It will steadily rise
From the trammels of earth;
Though chance's vagaries
The worthless advance,
It will flee in dismay
At Truth's conquering glance.

The Cotton Crop.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The report of the statistician of the department of agriculture for June makes the acreage in cotton 97.7 per cent. of the area of 1890, and the average condition 85.

The reduction of area is attributed in some districts to concerted contraction on account of low prices, but it is evident that it is mainly due to unfavorable conditions for planting and germination. The record of planting in the May report is quite accurately the history of the crop to the present time. Planting was delayed by early rains; drought in the latter half of April followed by a continued drought in May; germination arrested; replanting active; defective stands corrected are features of the record frequently and almost universally reported. These conditions were less general and controlling in Texas than in any other State.

Areas, as compared with those of last year, are given as follows: Virginia, 96; North Carolina, 94; South Carolina, 96; Georgia, 95; Florida, 99; Alabama, 96; Mississippi, 95; Louisiana, 96; Texas, 105; Arkansas, 96; Tennessee, 95.

The general condition is the lowest for June since 1874, though it is only a fraction lower than that of 1883 and 1889. The latter was a year of good yield through favorable later conditions.

State averages of condition are: Virginia 78; North Carolina, 75; South Carolina, 80; Georgia, 80; Florida, 90; Alabama, 89; Mississippi, 88; Louisana, 88; Texas, 91; Arkansas, 89; Tennessee, 73.

The temperature of May was quite too low for cotton, cool nights checking germination—in some places a few days, in others a week or two later than in seasons of early development. There is frequent mention of bad stands, but constant replantings will reduce the vacancies to a minimum.

Cultivation is necessarily late and fields grassy, with the usual variation resulting from differences in soil, the amount of replanting and the relative promptness and efficiency of plantation managers.

Farmers' Needs.

Commissioner Nesbitt in Southern Cultivator.]

We want more stock farms, more fruit farms, more truck farms, more grass farms and fewer cotton farms. We have a glorious country, but we are sadly in need of the men who have the nerve to inaugurate a different system in our agriculture; men who realize the importance of resting their lands, rotating crops, of feeding stock well and making and saving good, rich, barnyard manure, as well as using liberally and intelligently commercial fertilizers. To be successful in farming requires, as in other business, thorough business methods, constant effort and a careful and patient attention to details. Guess work will not bring the farmer any better returns than it does the merchant or mechanic. When we know exactly where the profits and losses come in we can then intelligently increase the one and avoid the other. Friendly legislation is a good thing, but it will not bring relief to the farmers unless it is supplemented by a careful and judicious cultivation of the soil. When the farmers are thoroughly organized, and farming is conducted on business principles; when intensive farming is the rule and not the exception, then, and not until then, will we see the farmers begin to prosper, and to receive their share of the long looked-for "profits."

Pea Vine Manuring for Wheat.

Bulletin No. 47 of the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station is a short eight-page bulletin on the subject of cheap fertilizing for wheat by means of cow-pea vines. Peas were planted early in June, broad-cast, at the rate of two bushels per acre. They were plowed under in October, when the peas were ripe; the land allowed to settle and wheat was sown at the rate of one and a half bushels per acre on the 12th of November. The season last year was very unfavorable for wheat, yet the average increased yield, due to the pea-vine manuring, was slightly over 16 bushels per acre. The year before on the same land it was slightly over 10 bushels per acre. The bulletin contains a fine illustration showing the appearance of the experimental field during the season. It was taken from a photograph, and is an exact reproduction of it. 20,000 of these bulletins will be printed, and a copy should be in the hands of every farmer in the State, especially wheat-growers and others who expect to grow wheat. In addition to the usual mailing list, it will be mailed free to all who apply for it.

Guinea Fowls on the Farm.

Mirror and Farmer.]

There is no sale for Guinea fowls in market, but the Guinea fowl is, nevertheless, one of the finest of all table-birds, possessing a certain game flavor that is not found in other fowls. They have full-meated breasts, and possess but a small proportion of offal compared with hens. If their real value for the table were known they would sell at high prices. On the farm they cost almost nothing, being industrious foragers, and there never was a better insect exterminator than the Guinea. Outside of the eggs, which they provide without cost, they destroy thousands of insects, and, though their efforts in that direction may not be apparent, yet the work goes on with them constantly. They are never idle, being busily engaged from early morn until night.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Virginia and North Carolina Agency,

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co,

No. 1,108 Main Street,

RICHMOND, VA., April 20, 1891.

To Our Policyholders and the Public:

The first dividends on Tontine Policies in the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, to be paid this year, 1891, will be from 40 to 60 per cent. larger than similar Tontine Dividends in New York Companies. A premonition of this portentous truth has made the agents of other companies more industrious than ever in circulating attacks upon the Northwestern, and endeavoring to show by false ratios and delusive figures that the "Northwestern's dividends have been falling off." There are too many of these attacks, anonymous and otherwise, to answer them individually, and Northwestern agents are too busy writing new business to notice in detail all these charges, many of which they have already exploded, and some of which are self-explosive, carrying on their face their own easy refutation.

If you are seriously thinking of Life Insurance, and are looking for that Company which will make you the largest returns, and consequently give you in the end the cheapest insurance, please invite the agent of any company making these attacks to go with you to the office of the nearest Northwestern agent, and if it can be proved: first, that the Northwestern's dividends are running down; or second, that the Northwestern's dividends on similar policies are not very much larger than the dividends of the companies whose agents are circulating these attacks, then the Northwestern agent will agree willingly and forever to retire from the Life Insurance business, and leave the field free to the attacking companies. Nobody objects to fair play, and certainly no agent of an attacking company ought to decline the opportunity of proving the assertions he has been circulating so broadcast against a competitor.

We want no business and ask for no man's application unless we can prove that the Northwestern will do better by him than any other company.

As an illustration of the truth of this assertion we append the following record of two leading companies on the life of the well-known Jno. H. Schoolfield, of Danville, Va., issued in 1889: same age (51), same amount ($10,000)—ordinary life plan—dividends used in cash to reduce premiums:

	Equitable.	Northwestern.
No. of Policy,	421,720	184,223
Annual Premium,	$494.00	$498.90
Cash Dividends 1890 & 1891,	94.50	131.97

Now, again, let us suppose that you were going to buy bank stock of two or more banks, and one declared dividends to the amount of $131.97 and the other $94.50, which would you select, the former or the latter? Why the former, to be sure. Then if you exercise the same good judgment in insurance that you would in buying bank stock, certainly you would place your insurance with the Northwestern Mutual.
